

When it comes to fire safety in the home, it is important to ensure that you and your family have a planned escape route should a fire occur. Fire can spread through a building rapidly, so by taking the time to make an escape plan, it could save lives, especially if the plan is practiced regularly. Sit down and decide where your family's meeting place will be if there is ever a fire. Then, draw a picture of you all in your meeting place and add a sentence explaining where it is.
